

PRESS RELEASE:

GHOST CAUGHT ON FILM AT CURZON CINEMA

Clevedon's Curzon Cinema was looking a little different for much of last week. The building was closed to the public, while the posters in the window advertised not the latest films, but the Adam Cortez Psychic Experience. Inside, ghosts walked the auditorium.

For four days, the Cinema building had been taken over by a BBC film crew, who were shooting an episode of Being Human. The Bristol-based drama, focussed on a vampire, a werewolf, and a ghost striving to live as normal people, is well into production of its second series, due to be broadcast early in 2010.

The Curzon will be featured prominently in episode 6 of the new 8-part run, and sees the ghost Annie (Lenora Crichlow) attending Adam Cortez's show. Filming took place outside the cinema, in the auditorium, and in the Curzon's closed-off balcony.

Curzon Director Gareth Negus said, "It's the first time the Curzon has been closed for so long to accommodate a film crew, but we were delighted to be involved with Being Human. It's great for the Curzon to be featured in such a popular and critically acclaimed series."

Ends.
